DRINKING FROM A FIRE HYDRANT

BASIC LEGAL RESEARCH IN THE AGE OF TECHNOLOGY

Thursday, July 13, 2017, 12-1pm - Part 1

Presented by Rebecca Cattich, Esq.

Solutions Consultant, LexisNexis

San Francisco Law Library

1145 Market Street, 4th Floor, San Francisco, CA 94103

Technological advancement has enabled humanity to retain and process seemingly endless amounts of information. Nowhere is that more true than in the American legal system. Making sense of the water pouring from that particular fire hydrant is the focus of this course on the fundamentals of basic legal research in the age of electronic legal research.

During our session, we will cover:

- Model Rules & Technology
- Competency as an Attorney
- Using Citations, Party Names & Source Selection
- Refining Your Search
- Sections of a Case
- Topic Summary Reports
- Citation Services
- Research History

*CLE is approved or in the process of approval for 60 minutes of CLE credit. The type of credit allowed will be determined by the state governing MCLE Board.
